

Session 7: Jesus, Isaiah, and Immanuel

Key Takeaways

- Matthew does not view the prophets as offering predictions of specific future events that come to pass through Jesus, but instead sees Jesus' life as bringing to their fullness prophetic promises and hopes.
- Matthew cites the Old Greek version of Isaiah 7:14, tapping into an already existing tradition of interpreting the young woman Isaiah mentions as representing virgin Zion.
- Matthew quotes a specific verse in Isaiah, but he draws on how that verse fits within the entire book of Isaiah and how Isaiah fits within the Hebrew Bible as a whole.

This session covers the notes from session 6

Reflection Question

Does Isaiah 7:14 promise that the Messiah will be born of a virgin? What does Matthew mean by citing this verse?
